LONGREN WILL BUILD NEW UNIT

Longren Aircraft Co., Inc., has begun construction on a new 20,500 square foot warehouse building behind their new plant on Crenshaw Blvd. at the Torrance Airport, according to Hampden Wentworth, president.

The new warehouse building will be used for raw material storage and will also house an Alodine and Scotch-Prime processing installation. Longren's new 56,000 square foot general office and assembly plant was completed last July at 24751 Crenshaw Blvd. Longren presently has two plants—one at the Crenshaw location and one at 2576 W. Carson St., which is a fabrication plant. The new warehouse building boosts the total office and manufacturing area for the company to 123,000 square feet.

Receipt of a large contract from Convair, San Diego, for Interspar Rib Assemblies for the supersonic F-102A interceptor and an additional large contract from Boeing, Seattle, for Interspar Rib Assemblies for Boeing's KC-135 jet tanker and the 707 commercial jet airliner, has necessitated the additional floor space.

Employment at Longren is presently 475 and its sales backlog of approximately $6 million is the largest in the company's history.
